Dewey Asks Light Conservation In Telegram to Mayor Edelmuth

There is now an average of only 15 days supply of coal for the public utilities in the state of New York. If the railroad strike should continue or the coal strike resume, the people of the state are faced with a prospect of quick exhaustion of the coal supply and immediate paralysis of all industrial activities.

Accordingly will you please immediately of the use of all display lighting of every kind reduction in street lighting as is consistent with the safety of the community.

In the event I am compelled to declare a state of emergency will you please be prepared with plans and conditions which will wholly eliminate all non-essential power consumption.

Mayor Edelmuth asks the people of the county to cooperate in all these measures, and to bring them into effect as soon as possible.

Aboard Flagship Mt. McKinley, May 25 (P)—If the first atomic bomb dropped in the Bikini lagoon test proves a dud, the task force will determine what was wrong before dropping another, Capt. C. H. Lyman, operations chief, said at a news conference.

The conference was held aboard ship, en route to the Marshall Islands. Lyman said all but a few key personnel will be evacuated from Eniwetok at least two or three days before each test. Some 200 natives will be taken to Kwajalein, he said, and probably will never return to their Eniwetok homes.

Ulster county farmers and poultrymen, faced with the most acute feed shortage in the county's history, met in emergency session at the Ulster County Farm Bureau Office yesterday in an effort to relieve a situation that has broad and menacing implications.

With the grain bins almost drained and the situation further aggravated by the railroad strike, city and county dealers said that by Tuesday of next week not a pound of poultry mash would be available.

County Farm Agent Albert Kurd, who served as chairman of the meeting attended by all except four of the county's feed and grain dealers, urged positive action to alleviate what he termed a "very gloomy proposition."

Most immediate implications of the feed shortage Kurd said were: Wholesale liquidation of young poultry stock and young layers. (Diet is so important with these birds, Mr. Kurd said, that a one day's loss of food would cause them to "molt" and quit laying immediately. It normally requires from two to four months to restore a chicken to normalcy.)

Effects in Autumn
A serious food situation could develop in the area next fall, if current broiler and poultry stocks were liquidated because of the lack of feed now. Egg shortages would be inevitable.

Admitting that the immediate situation is beyond remedy, the grain and feed dealers, adopted a resolution urging every farmer in Ulster county to write personal letters to Senators Wagner and Mead, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, O.P.A. Chief Paul Porter, Economic Stabilization Director Chester Bowles and President Truman.

The purpose of the letters would be to inform the high government officials that unless drastic improvement are effected Ulster county and surrounding area faces a grave food situation. "The situation is worse than I thought and has been made more acute by the railroad strike," Kurd told the dealers. "I realize that your stock bins are cleared and there is no more poultry mash and feed coming into Ulster county for the next several days."

Mr. Kurd suggested that the dealers create a pool to supply cases where the need for poultry mash was desperate. An inventory, however, revealed that there was virtually nothing on hand and only a couple of dealers had any feed in transit.

The general situation was grave enough before the strike, but now it's beyond description," Kurd continued. The long range implications are a definite threat to poultrymen and dairymen and something must be done to acquaint top government officials of the desperate plight of the county farmers and poultrymen.

"Competition is out of the window," Kurd warned the group. "We now face a serious problem and everyone must pitch in."

Has Two-Day Supply
One dealer said he had a normal two-day's supply of poultry mash on hand when the railroad strike went into effect. By strict rationing, he said, his company hoped to make the supply last for at least eight days. Poultrymen in most dire need would be given 50 per cent of the amount of purchases during May and June 1945 while the supply lasts.

Poultrymen were warned against further hatching of baby chicks. In some cases chicks are being sent back to the hatcheries.

Russia Completes Removal Of Troops From Manchuria

Nanking, May 25 (P)—Completion of Russian evacuation of Manchuria was announced officially today amid new attempts to end China's internal struggle.

The ministry of Foreign Affairs said it had received official notification from the Soviet embassy, in answer to a query sent May 4. There had been an earlier unofficial announcement of the withdrawal of Russia's occupation troops.

Edwin W. Pauley, U. S. reparations commissioner, announced here he soon would establish a base in Mukden to survey Manchurian industry, reported stripped by the Russians of much of its vital machinery.

Pauley expressed belief there was not "much chance" China would recover the machinery. The speculation about new prospects for internal peace was spurred by the visit of Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-Shek to Mukden in the personal plane of

All who know him know the sterling character of his priestliness and because of it will easily understand his generosity in offering himself to the work of the Foreign Missions. At the same time, we are all going to miss him. Freeman Will Limit Number of Its Pages During Railroad Crisis

The emergency caused by the nation-wide railroad strike, which affects the shipment of newsprint along with all the other commodities shipped by rail, will result in The Freeman reducing the number of pages of its daily run of over 12,000.

The Freeman management announces that with the cooperation of its advertisers limiting the size of its paper will insure daily publication for a longer period.

The usual coverage of local happenings, gathered and edited by the editorial and reportorial staffs and also the national and international events of major importance which is received over the Associated Press Teletypes, will be published.

During the halt in transportation by railroads, the mail service will be affected. This will mean that the news gathered by Freeman correspondents in the townships outside the city of Kingston and sent in by mail will not be received regularly and consequently will not be published as promptly as desired.

The big rolls of paper needed to feed the presses are shipped by rail from Quebec, Canada, to The Freeman. In order to conserve the stock of newsprint on hand, The Freeman finds it necessary to reduce the number of pages to insure a longer period of continuous publication.

The adjudicators at the New York State School Music Association competitions in Hudson yesterday afternoon announced that the A Cappella Choir of Kingston High School was the finest they ever heard as they awarded the local singers a one plus rating, (excellent plus).

Under the direction of Leonard Stine the choir sang in competitions with 18 other choruses from this section of the state including such schools as Poughkeepsie, Albany, Catskill, Chatham, Rensselaer and Ballston Spa.

Dr. Frank Cavallo of Utica and Dale Patton, director of music at Colgate University were the adjudicators. They said they had become so interested in listening to the selections that had forgotten to make any criticisms.

Takes Rail Situation To Congress

President Makes Bid to Strikers to Man Trains or Drastic Action Due

Sketches Outline

President Says Health, Safety Endangered by Strike

Washington, May 25 (AP)—President Truman today directed the breaking off of further government efforts to mediate the rail dispute with striking unions.

Washington, May 25 (AP)—President Truman, in the sternest mood the nation has seen him, carried the rail crisis to Congress today, branding it a "strike against the government and 140,000,000 Americans."

With an extraordinary joint session waiting to hear him at 4 p. m. E.S.T., the President posted an ultimatum that he intended to use the army to end the paralyzing tieup unless the striking engineers and trainmen return to their jobs by that time.

"The welfare of the country must come first," he declared in appealing to the strikers to man the trains again.

Mr. Truman gave no further hint in laying the rail strike problem before the people in a radio address last night, just what legislative recommendations he might present to Congress on the subject.

However, key Democratic lawmakers reported that under consideration was a drastic act empowering the government to penalize all striking against enterprises under federal control, such as the seized railroads. Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) promised the Senate Mr. Truman's speech will contain "definite and specific" proposals.

The background for Mr. Truman's appearance before the joint session was one of great gravity and apprehension. In his second day, the strike was tightening the stranglehold of the country's industry and commerce, disrupting reconstruction timetables for weeks to come. It had housewives nervous about food supplies. And it was piling up an incalculable cost in industrial, civic and personal losses.

The President sketched the whole prospect quickly when he spoke last night.

"All of you will see your food supplies dwindle, your health and safety endangered, your streets darkened, your transportation facilities broken down," he said. "The added inflationary pressure caused by the drop in production cannot be measured."

President Truman's pledge to restore the strike-bound railroads to operation added a new note of urgency to the impending decision, because without coal many of the trains soon would stand idle again. One faint hint of hope in the coal picture—and it was no more than that—arose from the fact Mr. Truman did not couple his appeal to the striking rail workers with one to the miners.

This could mean that the government, as boss of the seized pits, felt some assurance that the truce would be extended for further settlement talks. Unless extended, it expires with the last shifts worked today.

On the other hand, however, it could be that administration was

The infrequency with which crossing gates are lowered as a result of the railroad strike gives almost everyone a "break." Queues of vehicles awaiting the lifting of gates are seldom seen.

However, the chief obstacle, the Broadway crossing, still exists. When the strike is over we'll wait as usual. Maybe someday the crossings will be eliminated.

N. Y. Terminals Deserted as Rail Men Remain Away

Thousands Not Striking Get Layoff Notices as Concerns Do Away With Jobs

New York, May 25 (AP)—The transportation crisis still gripped New York city today and there was no indication that striking railroad engineers and trainmen were heading President Truman's back-to-work appeal.

Both Grand Central terminal and Pennsylvania station, the city's main railroad depots, were deserted. Some observers described the scene as bleaker than yesterday.

There was no activity at the headquarters of Thomas J. Harkin, eastern representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Meanwhile, railroad paralysis, complete except for token operations, resulted in the first layoff notices to thousands of non-striking rail workers.

the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers, and F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

He charged them with spurning a strike peace plan for increased wages which was accepted by the 18 other major railroad brotherhoods.

The two union leaders had nothing to say after listening to the President's broadcast, but initial Capitol Hill comment backed the militant tone he had taken, and the White House reported a quick and favorable response from the country at large.

Meanwhile, Senator Pepper (D., Pa.) declared after a post-midnight conference with Whitney that he believed the unions would be willing to end the strike immediately under an interim agreement with the government as operator of the railroads, bypassing the operators for the present.

Pepper's View of Restoration
Pepper said he was "sure" the workers would restore train service if:

"Any permanent working conditions or benefits they might later work out with management in excess of those enjoyed during governmental operation should be made retroactive."

"If rule changes awarded by the emergency board are awarded by the government during government operation, and the government further allows reasonable wage increases."

The emergency board — the President's fact-finding panel in the rails dispute — recommended that a part of the 40-odd changes in working rules demanded by the brotherhoods be granted.

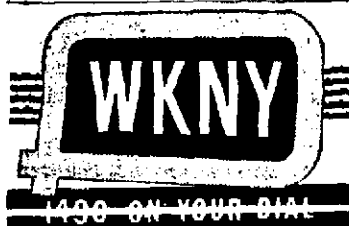

John K. Steelman, Mr. Truman's labor advisor, asked both the carriers and striking brotherhoods to resume their negotiations today, but the two sides were reported still as far apart as ever on the questions of wages and working conditions. Thus major interest centered on what Mr. Truman will say to Congress.

The chief executive, in his radio speech, went over the heads of union leaders to call upon the striking railmen to return to work. "To each man now out on strike I say that the duty to your country goes beyond any desire for personal gain," he declared.

The effectiveness of the appeal was yet to be proven, but in one case a joint committee of the striking brotherhoods at Buffalo later wired the unions chiefs that 1,500 trainmen there were "still 100 percent behind you."

Realization Is Doubled
Mr. Truman asserted he doubted whether the union rank and file realized the tragic effect their strike was causing.

He spoke particularly of the disruption of famine relief shipments, declaring that 100,000 tons of grain are being held up by the rail stoppage.

Mr. Truman was quite brief in announcing his intention to call in the armed forces if the strikers fail to heed his appeal to return to work this afternoon.

"As head of your government," he declared, "I have no alternative but to operate the trains by using every means within my power."

"I shall call upon the army to assist the Office of Defense Transportation in operating the trains and I shall ask our armed forces to furnish protection to every man who heeds the call of his country in his hour of need."

There was an unaccustomed bite in Mr. Truman's voice tone and again when he referred to the two brotherhood leaders, Whitney and Johnston.

"It is inconceivable," he said, "that in our democracy any two men should be placed in a position where they can completely stifle our economy and ultimately destroy our country."

Takes Two to Tack
He took the two men to task because they "refused to arbitrate" and "rejected" an emergency government board's recommendation for a strike settlement.

"I assume," he observed, "that these two men know the terrible havoc that their decision has caused and the even more extreme suffering that will result in the future. It is inconceivable that the rank and file of these two unions realize the terrifying situation created by the action of these two men."

The President said that he had warned Whitney and Johnston in advance what the effects of a strike would be, but he added: "They have refused to heed my warning."

"I would deeply regret," the President went on to say, "if the act of the two leaders of these unions should create such a wave of ill will and a desire for vengeance that there should result ill advised legislation that would cause labor to lose those gains it has rightfully made during the years."

"As President of the United States, I am the representative of 140,000,000 people and I can not stand idly by while they are being caused to suffer by reason of the action of these two men."

"This is no contest between labor and management. This is a contest between a small group of men and their government. The railroads are now being operated by your government and the strike of these men is a strike against their government. The fact is that the action of this small group of men has resulted in millions of other workers losing their wages."

Mr. Truman presented the rail strike problem to the nation after a long, unproductive day of many struggles for a solution to the deadlock.

The two centers of activity were the White House, where the President held two long meetings with the top advisers, and the Statler Hotel, just three blocks away, where representatives of the carriers and trainmen sought compromise.

After first meeting with his Cabinet, the President held a later session with the top members of his official family who are immediately concerned in the rail and coal disputes.

It was following this second session that announcement was made of the President's intention to address the nation by radio last night, and go before a joint session of Congress this afternoon to discuss the strike situation.

The carrier-brotherhood conferences in the air-conditioned Statler, meanwhile yielded nothing. The verdict Steelman gave on these discussions was: "The situation looks dark."

Whitney and Johnston said the offer, made by Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of Labor Schwelmbach, consisted of (1) a basic wage increase of 18 1/2 cents an hour; (2) acceptance of working rule changes recommended by the President's Fact-Finding Board; (3) arbitration of other demands for rule changes.

The Brotherhood leaders indicated they might have accepted, but said they were informed later the carriers "had nothing further to offer" than the 18 1/2 cent increase with no immediate rule changes — President Truman's previous proposal.

Steelman said only that final offers by each side were mutually unacceptable.

Brotherhoods' Statement
The Brotherhoods asserted in a statement that "it is not our desire to inconvenience the American public but the facts are that the railroads have not offered us a single penny or an improved rule (for working conditions) since we have entered into negotiations with them in November 1945. x x x" ness and commercial holiday was expected to bring a welcome respite to commuting hardships.

The New Haven Railroad, meanwhile, announced it would operate trains between New Haven and New York today for the first time since the rail strike began and the Pennsylvania Railroad announced an expansion of its current skeleton service between New York and western points.

Howard S. Palmer, president and trustee of the New Haven line, in making the announcement, said no further details were available.

Wholesale Layoffs Loom
The Pennsylvania Railroad began layoffs by serving notice of "job abolition" on 4,000 workers, or 25 per cent employed on New York division, which embraces New York city and northern New Jersey.

The Railway Express Agency, employing 12,800 platform and vehicle men in Greater New York and Hudson county, N. J., announced the first of a projected 8,700 layoffs resulting from the express embargo which started with the rail strike.

Business houses, too, began to feel the effect as the strike entered its second day. The New York Stock Exchange abolished its usual two-hour trading period today and many retail stores and commercial concerns instituted holiday schedules.

Enough Food in City
But on the bright side of the picture, Markets Commissioner Eugene G. Schulz reported that no foodstuffs were arriving in New York in "sufficient quantities for normal daily consumption."

Yesterday, hitch-hiking became an accepted practice by both bankers and clerks, as commuters took to buses, cars, ferries and taxis in place of idle trains. Highways connecting the suburban areas were jammed with motorists.

Service Is Begun

New York, May 25 (AP)—The Hudson River Day Line steamer Hendrick Hudson left the West 42nd street pier at 10 a. m. today for Poughkeepsie and return, opening the 1946 river service of the line. The steamer was scheduled to stop at Indian Point, Bear Mountain and Newburgh each way.

County Faces Feed Shortage

because of the lack of starting mashes and grains.

Wholesale liquidation of poultry flocks is certain to follow in the next few weeks and it was pointed out that further hatching would be nothing short of suicide.

Had to Kill 13,000 Chicks
A tragic note entered the discussion when it was disclosed that a woman poultry farmer near Carle in Greene county recently was forced to liquidate nearly 13,000 baby chicks because of feed shortage.

Dairy farmers were warned to discontinue feeding dairy feeds to their herds if they have pasture lots. This action made necessary the shortage will have a definite effect on milk at a time when farmers normally anticipate a surplus of milk.

During the discussion several dealers delivered a scathing denunciation of what they termed "maldistribution" of the nation's feed and grain supply.

"There is no feed and dairy mash shortage," a dealer said. "I know for a fact that there are huge supplies in Ohio and the middle west, but the feed is not being moved because of O.P.A. policies."

Challenges Contention
The dealer challenged the contention that the shortage exists because of heavy United States commitments to the starving nations abroad.

"The situation won't change much," he declared unless the grains are taken out of government control and O.P.A. influence and diverted through normal channels. "The dealer said he was not advocating complete lifting of price ceilings but felt that the grain situation was desperate because of mishandling, maldistribution and maladministration. Virtually everyone present concurred in the theory."

retary of the Interior Krug and Morell met with producer representatives to outline the government's position on Lewis's contract demands.

The U.M.W. chief had been given this outline on Thursday, including the administration's stand on his highly controversial demand for a seven per cent payroll levy to finance a union welfare fund.

While all principals refused to discuss any details of the negotiations, there were reports that Krug might be inclined to favor jointly or independently administered fund built upon a levy of not more than three and one-half per cent.

However, Lewis's action yesterday in delaying any further meeting of his 250-member policy committee pending "further clarification" of the union's position under the Smith-Connally Act led to some speculation that he regards Krug's initial position as unsatisfactory.

The policy committee would have to meet to ratify any new contract. Today's schedule in government efforts to break the stalemate was left indefinite overnight.

Fresh attention was focused, meanwhile, on the anthracite negotiations underway in New York. This is the day Lewis could serve notice of terminating that contract if he follows the same timetable he used in the soft coal dispute.

The demands for his 75,000 Pennsylvania hard coal diggers are patterned closely after those in the bituminous dispute.

were on the road last night. Diesel powered and manned by supervisory employees.

Will Cease Using Gas
The Allegheny Ludlum Steel plant at Watervliet announced that it would cease using manufactured gas for the duration of the strike, and the General Electric Company said it would do likewise, curtailing operations as rapidly as possible. "Several thousands" will be laid off next week, G.E. said.

The New York Power and Light Corporation had asked for such a suspension, and had urged householders, too, to economize.

The governor said public utilities had enough coal for 15 days.

if it were used conservatively, and that industry had an 18 to 20-day supply. Fuel oil and gasoline were adequate because they moved by water or through pipelines, he said.

Buffalo, Albany and Troy seemed least well supplied with food, and the pinch was expected to come early next week. Buyers were asked not to accede to panic, and the patriotic cooperation of everyone was asked in the governor's appeal to the people.

Reports Dog Bite
Mrs. Joseph Bradley of 9 Wyckoop place reported to the police Friday evening that her daughter, Arnela, had been bitten by a dog. Mrs. Bradley said the same dog had also bitten a boy named Dan Kins.

Adele Addison Sings At First Dutch Church

The privilege of hearing a young musician who has chosen to make singing her career was given to those attending the annual church concert at the First Dutch Reformed Church last night. Miss Adele Addison, Negro soprano who will be graduated from Westminster Choir School next Friday, was the soloist.

Miss Addison possesses a voice of rich quality which she has combined with her deep natural sense of expression to make her singing enjoyable to all. Her first group consisted of songs in foreign languages. Her second group included two favorite concert pieces: "The Rose Has Charmed the Night" by Rimsky-Korsakoff and "In the Silence of Night" by Rachmaninoff. She also sang two spirituals. For encores in response to the applause Miss Addison sang "The Cuckoo," and the popular "Summertime" from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

The soloist was a victim of the transportation tie-up yesterday and arrived in Kingston an hour before concert time only through the kindness of two fellow students who drove her from Princeton, N. J., yesterday afternoon. They were obliged to leave immediately afterward to return to college.

The five choirs of the church under the direction of Miss Sue Merriam, minister of music, gave a program of mainly folk tunes. The selections were particularly suited for the clear young voices and spirit of the children. The youth choirs range in age from pre-school through high school, and showed poise and training in their singing. The Adult Motet Choir also sang two selections and joined the youth choirs in "Worship" by Geoffrey Shaw as an inspiring climax to the program. Mrs. Raymond H. Rignall was the accompanist for the soloist and choirs.

ATTENDANTS WAIT WITH BRIDAL COUPLE

"Someone has told me that you have said when the bride and groom wait in the vestibule of the church to receive their friends who are not going to the reception, they stand alone and that neither their attendants nor their parents are with them. Is this true and if so, why is it this way?"

Not necessarily. The reason why it seems so is that wedding followed by no reception seldom have many attendants. But when the bride and groom stop to receive people, it is quite proper that their attendants stand near them as they would at the house.

Covers On or Off?

Dear Mrs. Post: Should vegetable serving dishes with covers be used with or without the covers?

Answer: If they are to stand on the table, covers should be on to keep the vegetables hot. When they are merely passed around the table, covers are taken off—naturally!

Guest Rules Are Indefinite

Dear Mrs. Post: If a club has a rule that the hostess must buy a guest prize if she invites a friend of her own to fill in for a regular player, then is the guest not supposed to be charged to any of the prizes offered for high scores?

Answer: I long have found the bridge prize rule in the various clubs throughout the country confusing. If there is a rule in your club forbidding a stranger to win the regular prize and it is customary to give this same stranger a guest prize, then you have to follow your own club rules. In the rules which are typical of New York, a guest prize is unknown and the stranger who has been invited to the bridge party would have a chance to win high score or whatever other prizes are offered. Every prize won is kept by the winner.

Hats at Dinner

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to a dinner in a hotel. However, this is a private dinner given by my office for a fellow employee who is retiring after long service in the company. Should the women wear hats? What type of dresses?

Answer: As a dinner of this type probably is being given in a private room, you would go without a hat and wear a simple evening dress. Or if the dinner is small and going to be held in a public restaurant, an afternoon dress and a flower in your hair or other hair ornament would be in best taste.

Methodist Church Gains Many New Members in Area

New York, N. Y., May 25—Methodist churches in the New York area added 26,017 members to their rolls between last September and Easter as their part toward the denomination's goal of a million new members during the current "year of evangelism." Of these, 16,769 were received on confession of faith and 9,248 by transfer.

National figures received by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam here today from the Crusade for Christ headquarters in Chicago show a present total of 606,982 new members. Thousands of additional new members will be received on Pentecost Sunday, June 9, according to reports made by pastors to Dr. Harry Denman of Nashville, Tenn., executive of the Board of Evangelism under whose general direction the membership crusade is being carried out.

Figures for the New York area by annual conferences are as follows: Newark, 5,198; New York, 6,682; New York East, 8,212; and Troy, 5,925. Results were obtained for the most part by the method of personal visitation evangelism, trained lay workers going in teams of two to the homes of prospects.

The goals were based on the fact that 60 million Americans are unchurched and 26 million people are newcomers to the communities in which they live.

Other objectives of the year of evangelism are the organization of 300 new churches and the establishment of daily devotions in every Methodist home. Already the opening of 410 new and formerly abandoned churches have been reported. The New York Area provided 10 of this number.

The evangelistic advance is one of five emphases in the four-year Methodist Crusade for Christ. Bishop J. Ralph Magee of Chicago is chairman and director. Dr. J. Manning Potts of Chicago is associate director.

Consecration Service Is Planned at Church

The Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts and Rogers streets, will have a service of consecration at the morning worship service 10:45 o'clock Sunday morning. A group of men will come before the altar to be consecrated for the task of raising funds in the parish for Lutheran World Action.

The Lutheran World Action appeal is sponsored by the National Lutheran Council with which eight separate bodies of Lutherans are affiliated, comprising a membership of 2,500,000. Its purpose is to make money available for continuing work among the men still in the armed forces, for organizing a spiritual ministry among wounded and disabled veterans in hospitals, for restoring spiritual forces in war-torn lands and for the seas and for feeding the starving.

In the local congregation the appeal for funds will be conducted from May 26 to June 4.

The pastor, the Rev. Russell S. Gaenzle, will preach on the theme, "Dare We Go Beyond The Saturation Point?"

'Milk Spread' Survey Goes to Syracuse

Syracuse, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—The legislative investigation into the controversial "milk price spread" moved to Syracuse today with testimony written into its record of an impending dairymen's strike in the New York milkshed.

The state temporary commission on agriculture opened the second of six public hearings on the difference in prices received by farmers and those paid by consumers to dealers.

The commission was told by a member of the Dairyman's League Cooperative Association at the first hearing at Watertown yesterday that strike action would have to be taken unless farmers receive higher returns for their milk.

"We don't want to strike," Peter A. Farrar of Hammond, declared. "But we'll have to unless we get the relief we are entitled to."

Within recent weeks, dairymen of Tioga and Broome counties have organized farmers' action committees and voted to strike July 1 for 25 per cent price increases for the last six months of this year over returns in corresponding months last year.

Other members of the Dairyman's League voiced opposition to subsidies at yesterday's hearing but declared that in the absence of higher prices they needed federal payments to continue in operation.

Olive Bridge to Have Pre-School Clinic May 28

Olive Bridge, May 24—There will be a pre-school child consultation clinic at the home of Mrs. LeRoy Davis on Tuesday afternoon, May 28.

Children who had the first dose of toxoid at the last clinic are urged to attend, also those wishing to be inoculated for the first time. Adults will be admitted for a special clinic.

It is especially advisable for those intending to enter high school in the fall to take this opportunity for vaccination, say those in charge of the clinics.

Those who have not been notified of the clinic, but desire to attend are requested to phone Shokan, 570.

All who wish to be admitted to the dental trailer, but have not been examined by the doctor in the past year, may attend the clinic. Dr. Bibby of Kingston and the public health nurse will be in charge.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Forgot Something Buffalo, N. Y., May 25 (AP)—For more than four months, George Filsinger, 16, and his eight-year-old brother Allan worked on a home-made 12-foot sailboat and dreamed of their first cruise.

Yesterday they launched the craft, climbed in, hoisted sail, and were promptly spilled into Buffalo river—they had neglected to provide the boat with a keel.

Cheap Cheeps

St. Louis, May 25 (AP)—When twelve thousand baby chicks and five colonies of bees were stranded by the railroad strike, fear that they might perish brought quick action from W. L. McMaster, in charge of undeliverable parcel post in the post office.

An auction was hastily arranged and some 500 bargain seekers paid a total of $625 for the chicks.

Fire Chasers

Detroit Lakes, Minn., May 25 (AP)—The Detroit Lakes Fire Department got a call to a fire at a nearby resort.

But before they ended their run—several hours later—the firemen had covered 75 miles without locating the blaze.

"Well," commented Fire Chief Frank Palm, "it was a nice day, so we didn't mind the ride."

Ugh

Roseau, Minn., May 25 (AP)—An Indian squaw, carrying her papoose, stopped at the ticket window of a movie theatre and bought a ticket for the current feature.

And she remained for the entire show, which was a Scandinavian production—all in Swedish.

STAGGERING STATISTICS

"Breath-taking" is a mild way of describing statistics on fire losses in the United States.

During the past decade 100,000 persons have been burned to death, 170,000 burned and disfigured and three billion dollars worth of property destroyed. Records show the annual fire loss in the United States exceeds the damage done in England in the two years of the German blitz. Forest fires annually destroy an area equal to all New England.

There are 650,000 building fires every year. Three hundred thirty thousand of them occur in dwellings and 46,000 in apartments and rooming houses. Manufacturing plants, motor vehicles, stores and shops, garages and filling stations, hotels and hospitals contribute the remaining 274,000 fires.

In the home the commonest cause of fire is smoking in bed or leaving a lighted cigarette some place where it might ignite inflammable material. Placing oily and dirty rags in wooden closets or on shelves are other frequent causes. Carelessness with electric wiring is a chapter in itself.

Common sense caution can be the greatest preventer of fire. Until more of it is used by more individuals, America's fire loss statistics will continue to be something that only astronomers really can appreciate.

The Emergency Food Collection campaign should receive the generous support given to the other numerous campaigns for funds held in this city and vicinity during the past year. Canned food may be taken to the school nearest you. Cash contributions should be sent to Harold V. Clayton, State of New York National Bank, Kingston, N. Y.

BEYOND NATIONALITY

Five men who shaped national ideologies are the subject of a new book, "Prophets and Peoples". All of them lived in the 19th century, that era of budding political theories, and molded destiny for their fatherlands and the world. They are: John Stuart Mill, who conceived the principles of English liberalism; Jules Michelet, fervent believer in the French Revolution's ideals; Giuseppe Mazzini, ardent Italian republican and opponent of King Victor Emmanuel; the less well known Treitschke, responsible for much of Germany's worship of might and distrust of democracy; Feodor Dostoevsky, Russian novelist and political revolutionary.

The author of the study is Hans Kohn, professor at Smith College and the New School of Social Research. A native of Prague, Prof. Kohn is himself an internationalist, having lived in Turkistan, Siberia, London, Paris, Jerusalem, and in the United States since 1931.

Such a book offers important background information for Americans who too little realize the international aspects of today's political movements.

The next two weeks are the most important planting weeks of the year in this area. Home gardeners will help the world stock of food by planting all available space. What is raised in that small garden in the rear of the home and canned may come in very handy next winter.

PROFITS AND TAXES

Profits accruing to business during 1945 were less than the government got in taxes. Private ownership's net profit was, in round numbers, nine billion. The government's "take" in taxes was 11 billion. This is from Henry Wallace in the Survey of Current Business published by the Department of Commerce. In the two previous years private business fared correspondingly worse than the government. In 1943, taxes amounted to 15 billion, profit not quite 10 billion. In 1944 taxes were 14 billion, and profit to industry a little under that of the previous year.

What the article calls the "net peace time earnings" is a little over one billion, the average of profits made in 1936-39, a depression period. During this time government tax re-

EDUCATION FOR LEADERSHIP

An important controversy is developing in this country which, quite naturally, does not make the front page because its values are neither startling nor ephemeral. The question is how are our children to be educated, the war having proved that, astonishingly enough, after more than a century of agitation and even outstanding accomplishments in the direction of compulsory, state-paid, general literacy, we are an astonishingly uncultivated people. Literacy and education, courage and wisdom are not identical.

The G. I. Bill of Rights forces consideration of educational problems because colleges and universities are bound to be overcrowded as many more seek to take advantage of the G. I. Bill of Rights than normally would choose university education. And many of those who have discovered the advantages of education, understand by the term not the cultivation of the human spirit but functional training with the object of improving their opportunities for a livelihood. The university degree, for them, is like union membership for a worker—it is an assurance of a job in a particular trade.

The controversy then resolves itself into this: Is the university a trade school preparing men and women for jobs, or a site of learning and scholarship where the sum of human knowledge and experience is preserved and handed from generation to generation with the object of stimulating thought, perpetuating scholarship and elevating spiritual and moral values? Or, perhaps the university may include both concepts without sacrificing either.

It is really a question of getting your money's worth or getting what no money can ever buy. The real difficulty is that for several generations educational processes in the United States were permitted to degenerate by a system of electives which made the inexperienced and unknowing child the master of what is required for an education. The assumption was that students for thousands of years had been required to study subjects which had no practical application, and which did not assist in earning a living. And the judge of the practical and wise was the youth just out of high school who was neither practical nor wise.

It was never, of course, intended that anywhere upon this earth, saxophone playing and eurythmic dancing, to take two absurdities, would have equal value with Tacitus and Descartes. Yet in many places it worked out that way, students selecting easy and sloppy courses which piled up "credits" sufficient for graduation without even slightly affecting the intellectual or spiritual capacities of the devotees. This process of graduation by attendance produced a host of men and women, with B.S.'s and even Ph.D.'s whose knowledge of their own language, to mention no other, of the history of their own country, to mention no other, of human thought and processes might have been picked up as readily from the Coke-inspired conversations of high school seniors in the corner drugstore.

Then, of course, appeared the specialist of the left eyebrow, the brilliant scientist or administrator who knew one subject overwhelmingly but nothing of anything else and therefore thought topsidely, like many of the atomic scientists, who, having become frightened by their own genius, possess too little history and no philosophy and possess too much humility. These specialists become too readily overawed by their own achievements, which could not have happened to an Aristotle, a Michelangelo or, to take a modern, a Goethe.

And so, genuine educators, like Mortimer Adler of the University of Chicago, realized that the distressing lack of leadership in this country is not due to a paucity of brains but to inadequate nurturing of the spirit. Many of our major political and social difficulties arise from the appalling unawareness of our governors of the fact that some of their major novelties are old and tried, and faulty. Even a little reading in history would have provided a basis for more "practical" thinking and action.

So the colleges are returning to the humanities, that is, to the continuity of human thought, experience, wisdom and application, to what might be called the eternal verities. It was to the good to know that Plato was not a form of sex experience, and that Aristotle was not a restaurateur.

GALL STONES

It has been found that about 3 of every 4 bodies of the middle aged and older examined after death show evidences of gall bladder disturbances. Gall stones are found in about 1 in 10 of all bodies, and in about 1 in 5 in all who have reached middle age. Notwithstanding the large percentage with gall stones, only perhaps 1 in 20 of them have any severe pain though they may suffer with gas pressure, belching, distress after eating, and constipation. However when gall stones move away from their soft bed in the gall bladder and try to enter or pass through the tube or tubes carrying bile away from the gall bladder then most severe pain, called gallstone colic, occurs.

There is sudden cramp pain (but not always) in the right upper part of the abdomen or pit of stomach, then it travels to the right shoulder and back. Some times it travels across to left side. Vomiting (or attempts to vomit) often occurs. The pain, which usually requires a hypodermic injection of morphine, usually lasts for several hours, usually three to fifteen, and it may be more or less severe during these hours. After pain passes, there is usually pain lasting a day or two, the patient placing his whole hand over the spot in right upper abdomen.

The distressing and dangerous point about shifting gallstones or gall stone is that the patient never knows when pain will return, as it apparently has nothing to do with the patient's physical activities. While this severe pain in the gall bladder region is usually gall stone colic, physicians in all cases usually order an X-ray examination, except when jaundice is present. The X-ray reveals the stones and the size and shape of the gall bladder.

What about treatment of gall stones? If gall stones are present but without symptoms no treatment is considered necessary except perhaps to treat any mild indigestion present. Treatment for gallstone colic is 1 to 2 gr. of nitroglycerin under tongue, or, if pain is severe, an injection of morphine.

Where repeated attacks of gallstone colic occur operation—removing gall bladder—is performed.

Liver and Gall Bladder

The liver does more different kinds of work than any other organ in the body. Anything that interferes with its work upsets all the body processes. The gall bladder gives many distressing symptoms. Send ten cents, coin preferred, and a three cent stamp, to The Bell Syndicate, Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y., mentioning The Kingston Daily Freeman and ask for booklet No. 119, Liver and Gall Bladder.

turns were almost three times industry's profit, or 3.9 billion.

These statistics from the Commerce Department seem to contradict the popular belief that industry stored up a great back log of profits without regard to public welfare.

Start of Railroad Strike Will Go Down in History as Hour When President Failed His Oath as Chief Executive, Is Argument

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 24 (Delayed)—Four o'clock on May 23, 1946 will ever be marked down as the tragic hour when a president of the United States failed to live up to his constitutional oath to execute faithfully the laws of the United States.

Existing law prohibits the slowing down by word or deed, of the operations of any property seized by the government. Yet by concerted action taken in defiance of the statutes, there has been a nationwide work stoppage on the railroads and in the coal mines. No warning of an intention to enforce the law was given by the President and, as a consequence, the nation's economic system was paralyzed.

Congress, being in session, waited for the initiative to be taken by the President, but the damage had been done. The fact is that labor unions are apparently stronger than the government, stronger than the law, and are being given special privileges now as a means of persuading them to respect the pleas of the government that they order their men back to work.

The eighteen brotherhoods which accepted the President's formula are to be commended. The two brotherhoods—engineers and trainmen—which precipitated the strike will not be happy over the record they have made—for they never can erase the fact that they ignored the authority of the government of the United States and deliberately stopped transportation when the railroads were in the hands of the government.

Whether cornered or seduced, the fact remains that President Truman has failed his countrymen. He has allowed a strike to be called when he had in his hands the leverage of prevention. He needed only to enforce the existing statutes and command respect for the power of the government. He chose to ignore that power and let the law be violated.

But the last word law has not been spoken. The citizens demand address in the courts. They can sue the government for failure to enforce the law. The taxpayers of the country may some day have to pay the bill for damages which President Truman by his neglect of duty has unwittingly allowed.

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The other night while talking about the brown blight that recently struck vegetation in Ponckhockie with Raymond H. Van Valkenburgh, Frank McCausland and George Goodsell, all three present residents of that section of the city, the talk drifted back to the years when I was a resident of Ponckhockie.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh, who is principal of School No. 4, said he still had in his files a copy of the Radio Magazine of the New York Herald Tribune, which featured a short story centering around the Ponckhockie school.

The story, supposed to be humorous, was written by myself, and I recalled having written a dozen short stories based on the exploits of "Bob, the Boy Radio Fan," which were featured in the magazine, which has not been published in recent years.

This was back in 1928. And while recalling the many events of that year, a turn for a minute to the play "A Family Disruption" which was presented by the Luther League of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on November 23, 1928.

In the cast were George Hutt, Florence Herd, Kathryn Bailey, Hilda Port, Fred Spalt, Ellen Hutton, Gilbert Schline, Paul MacDonald, Henry Dittus and Richard Bailey.

On December 5, of that year, the play "The Dutch Detective," was given by the young folks of the Reformed Church of the Comforter.

In the cast were George Hutt, Charles Kelse, Paul Barnum, Frank Barnum, Edward Rowe, Mrs. Edward Rowe, Mrs. Paul Barnum, Lulu Hudis, Beatrice S. Powley and Mrs. Vernon Kelly. Alfred B. Siegrist, who had been managing the Governor Clinton Hotel for two years, in November, 1928, filed his resignation to take effect on December 1, of that year. He had resigned to become manager of a new hotel being opened in Bridgeport, Conn.

Mr. Siegrist was succeeded here by the present manager of the hotel, Raymond R. Gross, who came to Kingston from Norristown, Pa., where he had been manager of a large hotel. The Kingston Trust Co. on November 26, 1928, moved back into its modernized banking house at Main and Fair street, after having occupied temporary quarters for several months on Main street, while the bank was being remodeled and rebuilt.

On November 1, 1928, H. A. Trimm of New York bought the controlling interest in the Stayview Hotel at Fair and John streets, and that month took over the management of the hotel. It is still the controlling interest. Mr. Trimm had purchased the shares of the estate of J. B. Phillips.
George B. Styles, Sr., veteran jeweler of the firm of George B. Styles & Sons, on Fair street, died on November 15, 1928, in his home on Lucas avenue, aged 88 years.
Mr. Styles learned the watchmaker's trade when a youth in New York city, where he spent four years before he returned to Kingston and opened a jewelry and watch repair shop on North Front street.
In 1879 he moved to Wall street, and still later to the present spot on Fair street, at John street.

Vets' Counselors Discuss Program Of Job Training

An in-service training conference of the southern section of the Albany area of the New York Division of Veterans Affairs was held in Kingston, Thursday and Friday, May 23 and 24.

The conference met in the offices of Waldron DuMont in the offices of the State Division of Veterans Affairs, 240 Fair street, this city. Mr. DuMont, who is the senior veterans' counselor for the southern area conducted the conference.

These conferences are conducted by the State Division of Veterans Affairs for the sole purpose of bettering the service offered to veterans wherever possible and to keep the men in veterans work abreast of any changes in the benefits to which the ex-servicemen may be entitled.

Many phases of veterans' work and veterans' benefits were discussed, with opening remarks on the various subjects by several veterans counselors and directors, followed by group discussions on ways and means of facilitating all veterans' work.

Among the topics on the agenda were "on-the-job" training, M. McGregor Rest, camp, pensions, education, business loans, agency set-ups, and an explanation of the new "on-the-job" training in agriculture.

This new agricultural program offers to veterans the opportunity to acquire an agricultural education through practical farm work supplemented by a course of study through formal education channels.

Will Try to Raise Big Horns in Catskills

An experiment to raise Rocky Mountain Big Horn sheep in the Catskills is being planned by Frederick Warnke of New York City and Wyoming. He will be located on the upper Dry Brook farm formerly owned by Leon Durrant, which he intends to completely fence.

The sheep will be captured in a forest preserve in the mountainous section of Wyoming, and shipped by express some time later in the summer.

The Catskill Mountain News in announcing the experiment says that Mr. Warnke, if the experiment proves successful, plans to liberate the sheep along the eastern mountain range.

Bill Dickey Named To Manage Yanks; McCarthy Resigns

Veteran Catcher Is Said to Have Contract for Balance of Year and Through 1947

The long managerial career of Joe McCarthy who has piloted the New York Yankees to eight American League pennants since 1931 came to a sudden finish yesterday when the veteran manager resigned his post due to poor health. A few minutes after President Larry MacPhail received McCarthy's telegram from Buffalo, the colorful official announced that Bill Dickey, veteran catcher, would replace McCarthy.

"It's going to be mighty tough to step into the shoes of the greatest manager in baseball history," Dickey was quoted as saying by the Associated Press, "and while I'm trying to do it, I'm going to continue catching as long as I feel I can help the club." Dickey has been named to pilot the Yanks for the remainder of this year and through 1947.

Dickey's 16-year batting average, before entering the navy in 1944, was .316 and while compiling it he drove in a total of 1199 runs with 1934 hits. In addition to playing in eight World Series, he also was named on American League All-Star teams 10 times.

Charley Ruffing, Dickey's old battery mate, probably was talking for all of the Yanks when he said "It was the logical choice and I'm certain all of the players will cooperate with Bill to the limit."

Mayor Edelmuth Stated to Throw Out First Ball at Stadium; Game at 9 P. M.

Opening night pre-game ceremonies will be cut to the minimum at next Thursday's debut of the Kingston Recreations at municipal stadium if a possible state-wide brown-out does not interfere altogether with the scheduled arclight contest.

Mayor William F. Edelmuth is slated to throw out the first ball. Before this every player of the Recreations will be introduced to the fans over the loudspeakers. The game will start at 9 o'clock.

The Reds, who will be showing before local fandom for the first time this year, will be decked out in their new home uniforms which are the same in color and design as the Brooklyn Dodgers. Economic, Social U.N. Council Has Big Job on Hands

President Sends Message, on Preserving Peace, Assuring Better Future World

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER
New York, May 25 (AP)—President Truman told the United Nations Economic and Social Council today it can make the peace a reality for the common people all over the world.

In a message to the council at its first meeting in the United States, the nation's Chief Executive said the council's task "is to achieve freedom from want, to encourage production, help to open up transport and clear communications and to assure higher standards of living."

The President's message was read by John W. Winant, United States delegate to the council, after the 18-nation body convened in the chamber used by the United Nations Security Council at the U.N. interim headquarters at Hunter College.

The delegates found a globe-full of problems besetting the peoples of the world awaiting them. The council first met in London last winter.

"The opening of this second session of the economic and social council stirs the hearts of the common people all over the world," Mr. Truman's message said. "You can make the peace a reality for them."

Welcoming the council for the American people, Mr. Truman said: "While the security council stands guard against new threats to peace, the economic and social council mobilizes the constructive forces of mankind for the victories of peace."

"We did not struggle to prevent the domination of the world by the Axis powers only to accept hunger, disease, poverty and insecurity in a world made free by brave men."

He said it was for the council to promote "a fuller recognition of the dignity and worth of the human person, and to advance fundamental rights of man through the world."

"To this great task," the message concluded, "the United States pledges its full support."

Lo Biancos Get Awards in Court For Bus Injuries

Mrs. Lucy Lo Bianco was awarded $1,500 and her husband, Joseph, $500 in Supreme Court Friday afternoon in an action for injuries which Mrs. Lo Bianco suffered while a passenger in a Hudson Transit bus in Newburgh on September 4, 1941.

The actions were brought against the Hudson Transit Corporation and the driver of the bus as well as the International Harvester Company and John Owens, driver of a station wagon owned by the International Harvester Co.

The jury brought in a verdict of no cause against the Hudson Transit Corporation and the verdict for damages was against the International Harvester Company and John Owens.

Mrs. Lo Bianco suffered the injuries when the bus and the station wagon collided at an intersection. Testimony indicated that the station wagon was being driven over a street on which a stop sign was erected.

Jurors were excused until 10 Monday morning and court recessed until that time.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of my mother, Carrie Weeks Satterlee, who departed this life May 26, 1944. She always leaned to watch for us. Anxious if we were late. In winter by the window. In summer by the gate. And though we mocked her tenderly. Who had such foolish care. The long way home would seem more safe. Because she waited there. Her thoughts were all so full of us. She never could forget. And so I think that where she is. She must be watching yet. Waiting till we come home to her. Anxious if we are late—Watching from Heaven's window. Learning from Heaven's gate.
ANNA SATTERLEE

Army Captain Held Following Crash

by Sheriff George Smith on a charge of reckless driving and arranged before Justice John O. Beaver of Esopus. He refused to enter a plea and his hearing was set for May 28 at 2 p. m. after he posted $25 cash bail.

The accident created a snarl at both sides of the bridge as the heavy week-end traffic had been shuttled one-way for several minutes after the accident. The sheriff's office was swamped with calls regarding the traffic tieup, Sheriff Smith said.

Injuries Are Suffered
Mr. Shook and Captain Armand suffered slight injuries in the crash, while Mrs. Mary Shook, who was riding with her husband, escaped unhurt. Mr. Shook was treated at the Kingston Hospital for a laceration over his left eye. Captain Armand suffered contusions of both knees and his left arm but refused medical treatment at the hospital. Mr. Shook returned to his home and was not injured.

The captain was driving alone in his 1941 Ford coach toward Kingston, while Mr. Shook was southbound in a 1938 Buick coupe, when the two cars collided a few feet from the Port Ewen side of the bridge entrance where the three-lane concrete strips narrow to two.

Stalled on Bridge
The captain's car was stalled on the left hand side of the bridge, while Mr. Shook's car was just off the concrete strip, when the investigation officers arrived, the sheriff's report said.

Sheriff Smith with Deputy Sheriff Egbert Maxwell and County Investigator Clayton Vredenberg conducted an investigation. Trooper C. E. Bailey of the Lake Katrine barracks also assisted in the investigation.

Cow Slaughtered In Woodstock on Friday by Thieves

Rustlers Are Frightened After Killing Animal Valued at $500 by Gilbert

An epidemic of cattle rustling has developed in this area recently and State Police caution all cattle owners to keep close watch on herds left in pastures over night.

The latest attempt to slaughter and carry away a cow was made last night at the Joseph Gilbert farm on the Byrdcliff road in the town of Woodstock, where a five year old pure Guernsey cow valued at $500 was slaughtered and partly dressed when the rustlers apparently were frightened off.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert had left their home about 9 o'clock for a visit to Mrs. Gilbert's father at Glenford. On their return about 11 o'clock, Mr. Gilbert made a tour of inspection of his cattle, a practice which he has adopted recently since an epidemic of cattle rustling has developed. In the pasture he found one of his best cows slaughtered and partially dressed. The head, feet and entrails had been removed but the thieves apparently were frightened away, leaving the cow on the ground.

Sergeant Arthur Reilly of the B.C.I. and Trooper C. E. Bailey of the Lake Katrine barracks of the State Police were notified and are conducting an investigation.

This is the second attempt during the past week at cattle stealing. On Wednesday evening shortly after 8 o'clock someone attempted to steal a heifer from the Cherry Hill Farm on the Sawkill road. The theft was discovered and while the heifer, which had been tied up, was being released the man who apparently had endeavored to steal the heifer made good his escape in a car. State Police are investigating this case also.

Only a short time ago a very valuable animal was slaughtered at the Beechford Farms at Cold Brook and there have been other reports of attempts to steal cattle.

A shortage of beef and a thriving black market has made cattle stealing a very profitable enterprise for some time but the rustling locally has developed in recent weeks.

Vets May Pay Insurance At Watervliet Now

Area veterans may now make premium payments on National Service Life Insurance either personally or by mail to the Albany Regional Office of the United States Veterans Administration at the Watervliet Arsenal, Charles C. Adams, Regional Manager, announced today.

Principal advantage of this new arrangement is that veterans will get official VA receipts for their premium payments immediately whether they pay personally or by mail. The volume of business handled by the big insurance offices in New York and Washington to which area veterans have been sending their premiums has often caused long delays before acknowledgements of payments were made.
